

Raining season 2010 on Koh Samui

Second big rain this season: 3. November 2010

A little bit further down in the small street on the way to our house the water rised till 120 cm....

On the second day we put some stones under the dog desks. Because of this we won 15 cm. The water increased that high that the desks didn't be flooded.

Among the 7/11 at Laem Din Market in Chaweng and Magic Light at the beach road there was introduced a ferry traffic.
At Laem Din Market there is a big water pump, to exhaust the water. But there's no benefit in that, if the electricity is not working for three days.

Big amounts of water plants disturbed the flowing-out of the water through the Chaweng Klong. Also the responsible government got to know, that the water plants disturb the drainage.

Also the second day of the big flood was taken very easily by the cats.
